SWEET PEAS AND HOW TO GROW THEM

Select your space in the open, where the vines may be trained on a trellis, and dig a trench about two feet wide and eighteen inches deep. Put about three inches of well-rotted barnyard manure in the bottom of the trench, mix a sprinkle of manure and commercial fertilizer with the dirt that has been removed and replace it. Open a trench across the bed about six inches deep and plant one ounce of seed to 15 feet of drill in the bottom of it, covering the seed about one inch. Now fill this last trench with water and soak thoroughly, following with a sprinkle of fine manure to prevent the surface crusting. After the peas are up eight or ten inches begin to draw the dirt to them, gradually filling the planted trench and opening another trench about ten inches from the row through which to water them the rest of the season. Frequent cultivation is very necessary and after the peas are 12 to 15 inches high a mulch of fine manure should be applied to the entire bed and gradually worked into the soil. Keep them well watered and at blooming time they should be cut each day to insure a long blooming period.

HYACINTHS FOR OUT DOOR OR POT CULTURE

HYACINTH CULTURE: For winter and spring blooming out of doors, the bulbs should be planted from 3 to 5 inches deep, according to the texture of the soil. The deepest planting is required in light sandy soil. Plant early in the Fall and spade into the ground a good supply of well rotted manure.

FOR POT CULTURE: Prepare the pots so they will drain well and use the best soil possible. Plant the bulbs about one inch below the surface, water thoroughly and put away in a dark cellar or bury them, pot and all, about eight inches below the surface in the garden. Let them stand about six or eight weeks and then bring them into the house a few at a time to have continual blooms throughout the season. During the growth in the house they should be well watered and kept near the light but direct sunlight should be avoided.

HYACINTHS IN GLASSES: A very interesting way to grow Hyacinth bulbs is in a Hyacinth glass made especially for that purpose. Fill the glass with clean water so that the water will touch the base of the bulb, place the glass and bulb in a dark cellar or closet until the roots have made considerable growth, being careful in the meantime to keep the glass filled with water to the base of bulb, then bring to the light and keep in cool place. A little charcoal added to the water will keep it cool and sweet.

Paper White Narcissus

CALLA LILY

The Calla is one of the best winter flowering plants for house culture, as it needs little care beyond abundant water and an occasional washing of the leaves to keep them free from dust. The best soil for Callas is a mixture of one-fourth leaf mould and three-fourths good garden soil. Plant the bulb about one inch below the surface of the soil in a 4 or 5-inch pot or whatever size is necessary, owing to the size of the bulb or the number planted. Then place in cellar or dark closet for three or four weeks. When the bulb starts growing bring to the light and be sure to give it plenty of water. Callas do better planted in the Fall months. Also remember that in climates no colder than the Salt River Valley they can be grown successfully out of doors.

ANEMONE

One of the most showy and beautiful flowers; of neat and compact growth, with elegantly cut foliage and the most brilliantly colored blossoms. It requires but little attention. For best effect, plant in masses.

CULTURE—Anemones require a rich, loamy soil. Soak the roots in water for six hours previous to planting. This causes them to swell and enables one to distinguish the crown which is readily discernible by the fibrous points at the top of the root, the bottom being quite smooth. A sunny place is best. Plant in slightly raised beds from Sept. 15th throughout the Winter season.
